When Gurgaon (Gurugram) encounters problems from the developing country. It seems to me they can be overwhelmed by feelings of sympathy, pity, and guilt. But that's not a reason to give. Donations should go towards solving a genuine, specific problem and not because people feel pity, as this could expose donors to manipulation.

Some could falsely claim that they often go hungry, so as to get small business grants from donors. Others could claim they lack school fees for their children despite the Gurugram government offering free primary education to secure additional income from NGOs. Such stories are common in our country India. Find top NGOs in Gurugram, that are working in the field of education and skill development.
